BREED THEATER.

Throbbing with vital interest, teeming with human emotions, that are forcing each other up to the great and sublime climax, are some of the situations in the wonderful biograph picture now being shown at the Breed theater, and the large attendance was most delighted with the very excellent Monday. To this great picture entitled "The Convent's Sacrifice" a great story of fate in all of its fearful moods is splendidly told, the wonderful scenes where the hunter comes to the open field and, carrying a scow, changes garments with it, only to be still further pursued and captured, is realistic to the point of magnificence of the photographic art adding much to the already beautiful subject. A special reel of children's comedy is shown for the delectation of the little ones, who highly appreciate this special effort. A wonderful Arabian tale is shown, and for accuracy of detail and novelty of location is seldom equaled. This carries a strong story under most trying circumstances and the bewildering appointments used in the production are the admiration of all.

Miss Ellen Hazel, soprano, from Keith's 125th Street, New York, was the soloist of last evening and was heard to advantage in her sweetly rendered song, "The Rose Tree." The World With You, also a pretty new English ballad with exquisite illustrations to accompany it.

LINCOLN PARK.

What seems to be easily the best bit of the season at Rustle theater in Lincoln park opened last night with a smaller audience than the performance merited. The coldness of the night kept many people away, but a little rise in temperature, which is looked for today, the crowds ought to turn out handsomely. The show is worthy of a house.

Theodore and Camille La Jex have an extremely difficult trapeze act figured down to a T. Their swinging and balancing is clever and Theodore is as good a contortionist as anybody could wish to see, especially when he bends himself into a box with two feet square to be carried off the stage. Joe Burke, the singing comedian, has two or three humorous songs that make a hit last night, especially the Scotch song and dance in Highlander's costume. Stewart and Desmond in their "Cops" are decidedly funny. Cohen and his partner, who are full of smart sayings with sharp local hits sandwiched in and the woman in purple of the fathead husband helps out Cohen's funniness. Muske Heuhn is handy with all sorts of instruments and his running fire of talk helps out the humorous touches of his playing. Hodges and Lauchner in the closing act are uncommonly capable and their reproduction of the inevitable incidents of a sea voyage is the signal for uproarious laughter. Their best work, though, comes when they treat their audience to a realistic imitation of a midnight scene by a tomato and his Grimaldi affinity. This brings down the house.

The season's casino privileges, which are the last of the season, will be open for dancing Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights at the theater's season closes Saturday, that the casino will be open every afternoon except Monday, and that he will let the floor for dancing any of the nights not designated.

CONNECTICUT FAIR.

Preparations for the great Connecticut fair, which will open its second season at Charter Oak park on Labor day, to run for a week following, are now practically complete and need only the minute of opening to set them off. For a double year, the arrangements of the last fair—the manager, Walter J. Snyder, with his corps of department heads, have been busy planning, arranging and executing the details which were to make the second fair a far larger exposition than its predecessor and now, in the last few days before the opening, the arrangements find themselves practically complete, awaiting only the final word.

"The largest in New England" is a phrase which can be applied with perfect honesty to almost every department of the fair, and the new England is the home of agriculture where the phrase is no empty one. The enthusiastic support of farmers, stock raisers, horse trainers and farmers, led on by the skill of a natural fair manager, has, however, earned this title for the second season of the Connecticut fair.

Figures sometimes suggest more than descriptions. The cattle show at the Connecticut fair will have over 600 head of cattle in the four dairy breeds—Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Holstein. From the north, east, south and west are coming the finest stock to make up this total, which will be, by all odds, the largest herd of its kind ever seen in New England and which will be housed in a tent larger than any other in New England. The poultry show will also be the largest ever seen in New England in connection with a fair, over 3,000 birds of every variety, which will be shown in their native state as far as possible, the land fowl being seen in grounds and the water fowl in a country estate, while the water fowl will be shown in a pretty little artificial lake.

The cat show will be larger than the annual cat show in New York, the display of vegetables including entries from almost every state along the Atlantic seaboard will again be a feature, never seen in New England, being shown in a tent almost as large as that which will hold the cattle exhibit.

Apples from Maine, market produce from Long Island, fruit from Maryland, Delaware and the orchards of New York will be seen in this gigantic exhibition of fruit and vegetables.

In the industrial show, for women over 5,000 articles have been entered, showing how keen is the interest among the women of the state. In the bee and honey exhibit will be not only entries from the finest apiaries in the east, but the demonstrations of the making of honey and its preparation for the market.

Of the exhibit of sheep and swine it can only be said the now of repeated phrase the largest in New England, being over 1,000 head being represented by this department.

In addition to all these shows will be the more exciting features—the horse racing, the exhibit of blooded animals in the horse show, and all the popular amusements, such as automobile races and the wild west show. The grand circuit trotting and pacing races of the Connecticut fair will be much better this year than last year, which is saying a great deal, as it may be remembered that Hamburg Belle broke a world's record for three straight heats. In the classic Charter Oak stake on Labor day there will be seen for the first time, a race between The Harvester, driven by Ed Geers, and Bob Douglas, driven by Roger McDonald, both undefeated trotters. Coming to the fore for the first time, the interest in the two is of the keenest, it being even whispered that with good conditions, Hamburg Belle's record of 2:01.4 may be broken by one or the other horses. In purely amusement features there will be shows of the highest class which money can bring. The Greys in their somersault act, "The Dare Devil Dads," the duo of one of the hair raising features; a man shoots down an incline on a bicycle, leaves his machine in midair, turns a double somersault and lands in a tank of water. The flying Jordens will also be seen in one of the most daring trapeze acts exhibited, while greatest of all will be Kemp's Wild West show.

SOAPSTONE QUARRY.

May Bring Big Returns to Stamford Investors.

Several Stamford investors are interested in the development of a soap stone quarry located at Talmadge Hill, between this town and New Canaan, says The Stamford Bulletin. The quarry is owned by Mr. H. Gilmore, Sr., of Bridgeport, a mining expert who has a wide experience in California and has traveled all over the United States, ever since the soapstone quarry was discovered at Talmadge Hill, in order to inspect a gold mine that was supposed to be located about nine feet below the level of the quarry. Mr. Gilmore found that the soapstone was of a rich vein of talc that in all probability, runs under several acres of the surrounding property.

About 18 excavations have been made about the quarry, ranging from nine feet in depth to 25 feet. The layers of talc which are nearest the surface are not so rich as the main ledge, which begins about nine feet below the level of the quarry. The layers of talc, as the soap stone is called, are of the same quality as the rock of Gibraltar. The upper layers will be ground up for powder. In fact, some of it had been ground, 175 mesh, second finer and softer than the prepared talcum powder. Mr. Gilmore expects to have the quarry in operation before he will be satisfied.

An offer of 75 cents per square foot (saved an inch and a half thick) has been made for the soapstone at the quarry, and the talc is sure to net at $100 per ton anywhere.

The nearest soapstone that is being made about the quarry is at New Canaan, N. Y., and government reports record very few others throughout the land, except in Virginia, North Carolina, New Hampshire and Vermont.

BEEKEEPER MUST PAY.

Court Finds That Watertown Man's Honey Gatherers Were Trespassing.

At Watertown, Justice C. B. Atwood has awarded Charles Field damages of $18.55 in the suit he brought against Frank Gilmore for damages of $150 caused by Mr. Gilmore's bees. Mr. Gilmore will also have to pay the costs of the court, about $25. Each of course, pays the fees of his attorney. The men are neighbors and the case has attracted a good deal of notice as it was an unusual one and of interest to bee keepers in general, owing to the fact that a similar case is not on record hereabouts. It is not known whether Mr. Gilmore will take an appeal.

In spite of the fact that the duty on cottonseed oil in Italy is extremely high (only two countries have a higher tariff, Austria-Hungary and Serbia), that country, with the one exception of Holland, leads the world this season in the importation of cottonseed oil. This is due mainly to the olive oil shortage in Italy.

Something novel in the line of a strike or boycott was recently reported from a small town in Burgundy. The physicians of the place raised their rates 30 per cent, and a mass meeting of all the ailing folk was called, at which it was decided to dispense with the medical men's services and trust to luck to get well.
